Mr. Fenning last night said that as com nittee of Mrs. Corbett, under an order of the court, he made a sale of all the prop-erty, and that an itemized statement made by the auctioneers was filed in court at least two years ago.

"This statement," he said, "shows that all the goods mentioned in the bill of particulars, filed by Miss Corbett, were sold and the proceeds credited to Mrs. Corbett. so that really Miss Corbett's only contention is that her mother, Mrs. Corbett, got the proceeds, instead of having them di-vided between the two. My account covering this sale was passed on by the auditor of the court, and was approved by the

"The step taken by Miss Corbett was instigated by other parties, and is merely intended to descredit the Government Hospital for the Insane and others who were appointed by the court to look after the interests of Mrs. Corbett and perormed their duties.'
